

Marlborough Stirling Canada introduces two-way lender link with AIG United Guaranty

TORONTO, Ontario, September 05, 2007 — Moving forward on its vision of connecting all players in the Canadian mortgage industry, leading technology services provider Marlborough Stirling Canada (MSC) announces the successful production launch of an electronic interface to AIG United Guaranty Mortgage Insurance Company Canada.

The implementation of this new interface provides AIG United Guaranty full two-way connectivity with its lender partners to allow lender underwriters to perform the following functions online:

- Request a quotation on mortgage insurance costs, such as premiums, fees and sales tax
- Submit application requests for mortgage insurance
- Update applications already in process
- Cancel existing mortgage insurance arrangements
- Receive status updates on progress made on the application from AIG United Guaranty's MI GuideSM system
- Receive messages from AIG United Guaranty's MI GuideSM system

Bill Pitkin, MSC President and CEO says: "Through this initiative we continue to show our commitment to developing systems that easily and openly communicate with each other, and toward ensuring that all industry players have the opportunity to capitalize on the efficiencies our systems provide. Lenders now have greater choice and we want to be right there at the forefront in enabling the smooth flow of data between lenders and insurance providers at the point of mortgage origination."

In 2006, AIG United Guaranty entered Canada as the newest national private mortgage insurer and quickly became a catalyst of change among existing mortgage insurers. With an increasingly competitive market, AIG United Guaranty introduced Canadian borrowers to the advantages of a comprehensive suite of innovative mortgage insurance products and a flexible approach to underwriting policies.

Along with continued enhancements to many of the existing products on the market, AIG United Guaranty remains focused on the needs of an ever-changing mortgage market by delivering innovation, flexibility, and choice to its trusted partners.
